SAYS STAND-PATTERS FALLING INTO LINE

Kansas Representative Stops Over Here on Way to Chicago.

By J. FRED ESSARY.

Victor Murdock, the militant insurgent Representative from Kansas, passed through Washington today on his way to Chicago, and he tarried just long enough to predict the ultimate triumph of the principles of insurgency. As a beginning Mr. Murdock prophesied that the next United States Senate would be controlled by the progressives of the two parties with the result that a revis-lon of the tariff, one schedule at a time, would follow.
"The next Senate will be dominated by the progressive element without regard for his party label," said the Kan-

The next House of Representatives will have a progressive majority that will surprise the nation. "Democratic? I don't know. I haven't been thinking about that. It will be progressive, and it will be productive of the sort of legslation that the nation

It will be more than possible. It will be come a fact.

"It is funny to see the way in which the former standpatters are adopting the reed of the insurgents. From one end of the country to another they are changing front. I can count you firty changes in the personnel of the next House, and every change will be in lavor of the progressive wing of one party or the other.

"National interest in national affairs was never so deep seated nor so apparent as it is today. This is the most overwhelming political upheaval that the country has seen in half a century. The public mind is awakened, the public conscience is stirred, and the public vote is going to be cast in favor of something different, something better and more wholesome than a party emblem or a party tradition.

Insurgency Is Spreading.

Insurgency Is Spreading.

"Insurgency is just as strong a factor in the State of Washington as it is in Kansas or Nebraska. It is just as strong in New Jersey as it is in my strong in New Jersey as it is in my own home. The sentiment is no more confined to the middle West than a river is conflued to its banks in flood time. "What I find in my touring of the United States, in what has been something of a whirlwind campaign for me, is that the people have stopped listening to the recount of past performances from their party orators, and that they want to hear something about new and advanced legislation.

"The day of so-called 'old-fashioned Congressman,' the fellow who could get elected repeatedly on the promise of a new poswoffice for his contsituents, is ended. The people have come to a realization of the fact that Congressman new postoffice for his contsituents, is ended. The people have come to a realization of the fact that Congressmen are elected to make laws.

The people, moreover, are learning that Congress is for the purpose of righ ing wrongs and correcting injustices and not solely for the purpose of making appropriations while they hinder and haggle and quibble and temporize over new and beneficial legislation. How Fight Will Be Waged.

"There are five things upon which the present campaign will be waged. They are:

"A revision of the tariff downward, schedile by schedule.
"The physical valuation of railways as projected in the railway bill and later cut out.

"The enactment of a direct primary law everywhere for every State.

The elimination of Cannonism, not of Cannon, but the utter change in the methods of selecting committees of the national legislature with the view of putting the right men in the right places. The simplification of the methods of

The simplification of the methods of procedure in the Federal courts.

"These are the five points upon which the insurgers are making the winning fights all over the United States. Of them the tariff issue is paramount. On these issues the fall elections will be won. The man who stands for these things at the primary and at the election will be the Congressman-elect from his district."

PREDICT LA FOLLETTE WILL WIN WISCONSIN

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 6.—Sena or Robert La Follette will be renoml nated by a vote of two to one over his opponent, S. A. Cok, in the race for United States Senator. This is predicted by his adherents today.

Despite the threatening weather, the polls were crowded early and a heavy vote is being cast.

There are contests in seven of the twelve Congressional districts; but they cannot be classed as of the insurgent variety.

BOTH SIDES EXPECT TO CARRY WISCONSIN

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Sept. 6.-C. W. Crownhart, who has been managing Senator La Follette's campaign, thinks that his candidate will sweep the State by a ratio of two to one at 'omorrow's primaries. W. C. Note that it's a psychological moment-that such blankets at such prices come but once a year and that now's the time.

Perfect in Every Respect

You'll notice that some of the Table Linens are very greatly reduced in prices-it's because the makers bring out their new year patterns at this time and the Palais Royal chief annually profits by the chance to buy the remaining old patterns at bargain prices. It's a psychological moment—for both us and you.
